The Honorable
Robert Gates
Deputy Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C. 20505

Dear Mr. Gates:

I would like to invite the continued participation of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Atlantic Council's Senior Fellowship Program for the 1987-88 academic year. This will be the seventh year of our Senior Fellowship Program.

During the current year, we have officers in our program from the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, and the Department of State, as well as from the Central Intelligence Agency. During the time she has spent with the Council, we have been pleased with the contribution made by [redacted] our current Senior Fellow from the Agency. [redacted] is currently working on articles on NATO and on arms control.

We are convinced that the Senior Fellowship Program provides mutual advantages to both the Agency and the Atlantic Council, and therefore extend again the opportunity for participation by the Agency.

The Council's Senior Fellowship Program provides outstanding individuals with an opportunity to further expand their knowledge and understanding of international affairs through a program of individual study and research, and through extensive participation in the Council's program of working groups on policy projects and regular meetings at which Senior Fellows' research is discussed.

During the year they are with us, Senior Fellows have the opportunity to investigate a wide range of political, economic, security and informational problems and multilateral means of dealing with them. They are able to meet, hear, and work with the exceptionally qualified present and former civilian and military government officials, business leaders and academics who make up the Council's Board of Directors and its Committees and Working Groups. The policy projects that the Council will be conducting during the coming year include an Action Program for integrating economics and security which will explore and make policy recommendations on the interrelationships between U.S. economic policy and U.S. national security policy. The program will include the following case studies on major foreign policy issues:

1. A Western Stake in the Soviet Economy? Assessing U.S. Economic and National Security Interests
2. Western and Eastern Economic Constraints on Defense: Implications for Mutual Security
3. Comprehensive Security: Balancing National Contributions to Western Well-Being
4. Longterm U.S.-Canadian relations
5. Longterm U.S.-Mexican relations
6. Assuring Western Technological Leadership
7. Managing the International Trade and Monetary Systems

Atlantic Council Senior Fellows will also have the opportunity to take part in the Council's Successor Generation programs designed to ensure that future Western leaders have the ideals that inspired the founding of the Atlantic Alliance. Finally, Senior Fellows can take part in the wide range of programs conducted by the NATO Information Office of the Atlantic Council aimed at promoting understanding and support for NATO in the United States.

Participation in the policy projects and the Council's other activities provides a Senior Fellow with the opportunity to secure wider understanding and perspectives on a broad range of international issues, and the interrelationship of political, economic, security and ideological factors. Senior Fellows will have the opportunity to perform research and contribute background papers related to the policy projects. In addition, Senior Fellows will be expected to carry out individual research projects in accordance with their background and qualifications.

Atlantic Council Senior Fellows will be selected from Agency nominees by a Selection Committee constituted of Directors of the Council, which I will chair.

Fellowships are held for one year, normally commencing September 8, 1987. In lieu of tuition, there will be a residence fee of $7,000.00 per year per Senior Fellow to help defray the Council's organizational costs. Nominations should be addressed to me at your earliest convenience.

We hope that the Agency will join with us in continuing the Council's Senior Fellowship Program.

Sincerely,

Andrew J. Goodpaster
